with Mary O'Malley

May 1, 2007

Committed to being an instrument in the transformation of world consciousness, Mary O'Malley helps people experience the freedom and joy of being awake and aware no matter what is happening in their lives.

Through her organization Awakening, she offers groups, classes, counseling and products which provide support for your own inner work and thus enable you to utilize the gifts this process unlocks, to benefit yourself and others.

Inspiration: This is a core source of joy –learning how to be quiet enough that not only can we feel life, but we can feel life in return celebrating our recognition of it.

Intention: I commit to creating times in my life, no matter how brief, for becoming quiet enough to truly see and hear and feel the life around me.

Featured Offering: Sign-up for the May 3rd Tele-Phone-Group and receive one session free.

A Message from Mary

It is early morning and I am sitting on my porch, watching the sun begin to fill my magical yard. It highlights the riot of spring blossoms in every color you can imagine and the vibrant greenness, redness and newness of the baby leaves. My heart is full. After all these years of awakening, after all of the practices I have added and let go of in my life, after all the longing and trying it seems to simply come down to.....relax.....let go. Open to life right here right now.

To our egos this is like life inviting us to let go of the handle bars on a wild and scary roller coaster. The ego truly believes that controlling life is the only safety there is. But as my hands have been pried off the bars by the circumstances of my life, I have found the exact opposite to be true. The greatest safety is to show up for life with as much curiosity and compassion as we can discover.

I just returned from a nourishing and inspiring week of silence. Twice a year I go to a beautiful piece of land on Whidbey Island in order to more deeply remember this core truth: "Relax. Let go. Everything you long for and everything you really are is always with you right here, right now. You can trust life!" It took me a long time to see that all the trying and doing and figuring out, while an important part of the journey, ultimately kept me separate from myself and from life.

I would like to share with you some of the shifts of perception that happened on my retreat as I more deeply relaxed my grip on life. The first day I arrived I walked the land, and rather than seeing trees and grass and flowers and stream, I felt them. In my core I could feel/remember the life force that animates all of these endlessly diverse and infinitely creative expressions of life. To move out of seeing life as a series of objects and recognizing it instead as an exuberant outpouring of the creative force at the heart of life brings forth such joy.

As the days unfolded, I would sit in stillness and simply open to the meadows and the forests. I felt/remembered that not only was I truly recognizing life, but that it was responding to my recognition. There was a sense of celebration in the air as one human being slowed down enough to truly be present for life. This is a core source of joy – learning how to be quiet enough that not only can we feel life, but in return we can feel life celebrating our recognition of it with our eyes, ears, mind and heart.

A few days later, another major shift happened when I felt/remembered that as I was recognizing life, it was recognizing me. I could feel the love radiating out of the grass, the trees, the bees, the birds, the flowers, the air. And I was able to open to that love – to receive its blessing. So it was now a full circle, giving and receiving love, becoming the love that is at the heart of life.

And then, as the mind truly let go, subject/object consciousness faded away. For flashes there was no me loving life and life loving me back. There was simply Life. And that is coming home – giving life our full, undivided attention, loving its riotous celebration, and having it love us back and then watching all sense of separation fall away and merging with the vast river of creativity that is Life.

Each one of us is on this journey to becoming life rather than the homesickness of always doing life. And we are exactly where we need to be on that journey no matter what our life looks like. Also, there is nothing we can do that will make it go faster or slow it down. It is all unfolding as it needs to be. With that said, I invite you to bring things into your life that remind you to let go and open to life right here right now.

And if a retreat calls to you, come be with me and other awakening beings on a retreat. (Click on this link and register for either retreat by May 15th to receive the May 1st reduced price.) There is great power in lifting ourselves out of our ordinary existence into a field of remembering such as the retreats I offer. The retreats also help by creating a safe and flexible structure. This allows you to take your hands off the handle bars of the roller coaster for a few moments here and there so you can discover that it is safe to show up for the life you have been given. It is not only safe; it is the path home.

Words From Our Readers

Mary,

The sessions with the group have been so helpful for me in such a diffused, non linear way, which I know IS living in the field that you talk about. I feel like you are offering such service as you be yourself in such an authentic, honest and open way for us to see how living in the field AND still experiencing the struggle at times looks.

Thank you from deep within,

Arlene
